- A current Federal Government employee, selected for a detail, will be assigned to the position at his or her current grade and salary.

Component Mission

The National Counterterrorism Center (NCTC) leads our nation's effort to combat terrorism at home and abroad by analyzing the threat, sharing that information with our partners, and integrating all instruments of national power to ensure unity of effort. The Center serves as the primary organization in the United States Government (USG) for analyzing and integrating all intelligence possessed or acquired by the USG pertaining to terrorism and counterterrorism, and its Director serves as the Counterterrorism Mission Manager. NCTC also serves as the central and shared knowledge bank on known and suspected terrorists and international terrorist groups, as well as their goals, strategies, capabilities, and networks of contacts and support. In addition, NCTC conducts strategic operational planning for counterterrorism activities, coordinating and integrating the efforts of departments and agencies across the Federal Government.

Major Duties and Responsibilities (MDRs)

- NCTC's Directorate of Intelligence (DI) provides interagency expertise and collaborates to deliver timely, objective, and comprehensive analysis that offers policymakers and government partners outstanding decision advantage in order to protect US interests and the Homeland from threats in and emanating from terrorists in Asia, Africa, and Europe.
- With a focus on these areas, the DI advances the IC's strategic counterterrorism efforts by warning of threats to US persons or interests within our area of responsibility; formulating and communicating analysis to inform policy and support operations; collaborating with partners across government to identify risk and opportunities; and driving intelligence collection through regular interaction, formal evaluations, and structured requirements.
- The successful candidate will undertake challenging and rewarding duties as part of a team of motivated intelligence professionals from other IC agencies and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI).
- We do this through dedication, collaboration, and hard work, while maintaining good humor and balance in our lives. Your role: advance the Intelligence Community's strategic counterterrorism efforts by warning of threats to US persons or interests within our area of responsibility; formulating and communicating analysis to inform policy and support operations; collaborating with partners across government to identify risk and opportunities; and driving intelligence collection through regular interaction, formal evaluations, and structured requirements. The successful candidate will undertake challenging and rewarding duties as part of a team of motivated intelligence professionals from other IC agencies and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI).
- Perform in-depth analysis of complex counterterrorism issues in Southeast and East Asia, including on leadership, networks, and capabilities of violent extremist groups and the CT plans, policies, programs, and capabilities of foreign governments for senior policymakers, executive intelligence consumers, law enforcement, and the ODNI.

- Plan, prepare, and present written and oral briefings to senior customers on significant intelligence issues.
- Study and use existing and emergent methodological tools and approaches to derive analytic insights from complex issues or large quantities of information; incorporate findings in well-structured, cogent intelligence products.
- Develop and strengthen productive working relationships with colleagues, experts, IC members, policy committees, and law enforcement agencies as appropriate and use these relationships to share information of interest and collaborate on intelligence production; attend internal and external training, seminars, or conferences on broad or more strategic subject areas relevant to your work.

Mandatory and Educational Requirements

- Demonstrated ability to effectively research and write high-quality strategic analyses, studies, projects, assignments, and briefings on important US foreign policy and national security objectives focused on a specific region or transnational issue for policymakers and/or executive intelligence consumers.
- Strong written and oral communication skills.
- Ability to remain open-minded and change views on the basis of new information and requirements; ability to solicit opinions from colleagues, and to support and defend collective assessments or group decisions.
- Interpersonal, organizational, and problem-solving skills, including an ability to work effectively independently, as part of a team, or in a collaborative environment; willingness to mentor junior colleagues.

Desired Requirements

- Experience with Southeast Asian political/military or CT intelligence analysis.
- Experience living or working in Asia.
