Component Mission

The Policy and Capabilities Directorate is focused on ensuring the IC is best postured to meet the future challenges and threats confronting our nation.

The Director of National Intelligence (DNI) serves as the head of the Intelligence Community (IC). The DNI also acts as the principal advisor to the President and the National Security Council for intelligence matters related to national security; and oversees and directs the implementation of the National Intelligence Program. The DNI leads intelligence integration and forges an intelligence community that delivers the most insightful intelligence possible.

The Deputy Director of National Intelligence for Policy & Capabilities (P&C) identifies, develops, and articulates the path forward for the IC. It makes future bets through strategic initiatives that address enduring challenges and emerging issues and looks for opportunities to combine information, data, and technologies from different INTs to do the unexpected. It envisions high-risk, high-payoff research that delivers innovative technology to the IC elements. It ensures innovation is informed by and manifested through transformative policy and strategy, and supports the communication of such developments to Congress and the public.

The Assistant Director of National Intelligence for Requirements, Cost, and Effectiveness (RC&E) is the principle staff assistant and advisor to the DNI to help shape intelligence capabilities by enabling proactive, balanced, and effective resource decisions on issues of national importance. This is accomplished through an institutionalized foundation of collaboration, professionalism, operational efficiency, continuous learning, and innovation in executing the mission with partnering organizations.

Major Duties and Responsibilities (MDRs)

Provide quick-turn and longer-term analytic products on a variety of topics of interest to ODNI and Intelligence Community leadership.

Lead, plan, and design major analytic and evaluative studies and reviews of cross-cutting Intelligence Community (IC) issues and programs to identify investment alternatives for Director of National Intelligence (DNI) decision.

Lead, plan, and develop background papers, talking points and other analytic products to support IC senior leadership to make informed programmatic decisions.

Lead, plan, and apply knowledge of a broad range of systems analysis and statistical methods to assess current and proposed IC programs and make recommendations on how to improve program effectiveness.

Lead, direct, and manage the application of high-level scientific research methods, analytical techniques, and other methodologies in order to develop analysis that informs major decisions within the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) and the IC.

Mandatory and Educational Requirements

Demonstrated ability to design, research, analyze, and present data-driven and unbiased analysis for decision support.

Extensive knowledge of the IC and its components, missions, and interrelationships, including the ability to lead broad-based teams regarding key IC issues.

Outstanding interpersonal, technical, and analytical skills required to effectively manage sensitive issues and expert ability to plan, lead, and implement complex technical projects.

Extensive experience developing and applying quantitative and qualitative methodologies such as multivariate analytical techniques (e.g. multiple regression, logistic regression) and statistical analysis models for decision support or systems analysis to identify alternatives for resolving complex issues.

Outstanding oral and written communications skills, including ability to clearly convey complex information and ideas at all levels of management.

Outstanding ability to develop consensus recommendations and to solicit input from colleagues and peers; superior ability to remain open-minded and change opinions on the basis of new information and requirements.

Desired Requirements

COTR certification.

Working knowledge of statistical software such as SPSS or Stata.
